

The Author:

Gerlis Zillgens, a Cologne native, used to work as an actress and as a director. She wrote scripts for movies and television series and continues to put her heart and soul into being an author. Her witty and entertaining books for children and adults are about individuality, friendship, and tolerance. When she is not writing a new book, she teaches others how to write. Or she dances a tango or a salsa. Or she is climbing up things. Recently, the Spiegel Best-seller List.

The Illustrator:

Katja Jäger knew in first grade that she wanted to be an illustrator. She was first commissioned by classmates to help them improve their art grade. Her favorite work is to develop and illustrate animal characters. She loves the color green and frogs, which is the reason why she is ideally suited to do the illustrations of this lovely book.

Hipp & Hopp Save Daddy Greenleap

The Frog Prince—what really happened

The frog children Hipp and Hopp watch helplessly, as their Dad is being kissed against his will by a long-legged, pale creature. After the kiss, the frog children are horrified to see the beautiful green color leave their dad's thighs, as he grows hideously long arms and legs!

Hipp and Hopp want their Daddy back! Mrs. Croak, the old toad, knows what to do: With one kiss, Frog Princess Irene can turn Daddy Greenleap back into a frog. But Irene lives ten big forests away. How do you get there on little frog legs? Without further ado, Mrs. Croak negotiates with a stork to give them a ride – he agrees, of course, with a strict no frog-eating rule.

REVIEWS

“The underlying idea is ingenious and the orchestration of the fairy tale theme from the frogs’ perspective delightfully unusual.” - gute-kinderbuecher.de

“Very entertaining and imaginative.” - favolinajunior.ch
